Q: Correct label size for iPad retina display I have a label that I want to use as a header on an iPhone and iPad screen. The width of the label should be perfect for the full-size portrait and full-size landscape orientations. When I run my app in the iPad simulator, everything looks great (including the text on all the other screens). But in the iPhone simulator, I see the text enlarged. Here is how my label is set up: `_addressLabel.text = @"My Label"; CGRect labelFrame = _addressLabel.frame; labelFrame.size.height = 40; labelFrame.size.width = 160; _addressLabel.frame = labelFrame;` How can I make sure that the label appears the same size on the iPhone simulator and iPad simulator? A: Your code looks fine. I suspect that the simulator defaults to something other than what you want, or that it's not actually using portrait. The objective of the proposed research is to
