ultra mp3 player download lagu atas mode lahirnya ultra mp3 player download nokia 7610 emulator. this app is a music player for nokia 7610, and you can play audio as .Q: Set an image in top left position of a gtk.Frame I have a Gtk.Frame object in which I want to set an image as background. class MainWindow(gtk.Window): def __init__(self,): super(MainWindow, self).__init__() self.set_title("MainWindow") self.set_border_width(10) self.connect("delete_event", self.close) self.set_default_size(300, 300) self.frame = gtk.Frame() img = gtk.Image() img.set_from_file("/home/.../test.png") self.frame.add(img) self.frame.show_all() self.show_all() def close(self, widget, event): print('MainWindow::close') self.destroy() The image shows up properly, but it appears in the bottom left corner. I would like it to appear in the top left corner of the frame. I read through the documentation on gtk.Frame, but I could not find anything on the topic. A: You are connecting to the correct signal, but since you're setting the default size in the init(), there is no reason for the size to change when the window is resized (it should never do). Just leave the size alone: self.set_default_size(300, 300) Since you're using a Gtk.Image widget, you don't need to set the size explicitly. That's what Gtk.Image does: self.frame.add(img) A:
