An initiative in an acute hospital]. For some years the staff of the hospital that we work in has been attempting to improve the quality of care, putting into practice some care delivery systems (CDS), with the aim of promoting and analyzing the results obtained. The CDS is a tool of reference in the management of care, in which the staff determines some issues and evaluates the care from their viewpoint, focusing on the patient, the environment and the systems of care. Thus, we have chosen, with the help of the clinical and laboratory staff, a certain group of patients with the aim of evaluating the results obtained and the impact of the CDS. The first survey was carried out in a selected group of patients, using a questionnaire that evaluated the degree of satisfaction with the care, in terms of comfort and the delay and the efficiency of the procedure. We find a low degree of satisfaction with the care in the case of 12.2% of the patients and an increase in the satisfaction with the care in the case of 24.3% of the patients. We emphasize the importance of having a CDS, which allows the staff to implement a dynamic system of care that will make the interventions more adequate to the needs of the patients. This is of the utmost importance, since the idea of our hospital is to provide appropriate care to all the patients.
