It was formed on October 15, 1939, from the 12th Rifle Corps. The army fought in the Battle of Khalkhin Gol during the summer of 1939 and in the Soviet invasion of Manchuria during the winter of 1939–1940. It later took part in the Soviet invasion of Poland and fought in the Battle of Smolensk. The army fought in the East Prussian Offensive in 1945 and continued to fight in the Königsberg Offensive in 1946. The army then fought in the East Pomeranian Offensive in 1947 and the Battle of Berlin in 1948. It was disbanded in June 1949. History The army was formed on October 15, 1939, from the 12th Rifle Corps. The army took part in the Soviet invasion of Manchuria, fighting in the Battle of Khalkhin Gol from October 27, 1939, to November 20, 1939. The army also fought in the Soviet invasion of Poland from September 17 to October 27, 1939. In October 1939, the army took part in the Soviet invasion of Finland. It fought in the Winter War. On June 5, 1940, the army was part of the 40th Army. The army fought in the Battles of Lake Ladoga and Vuoksi. The army fought in the Soviet invasion of Manchukuo from October 18, 1945, to January 31, 1946. In December 1945, the army was part of the Northern Group of Forces. From February 13, 1946, to June 10, 1946, the army was part of the Group of Soviet Forces in Germany. On June 10, 1946, it was re-established as the 30th Army. In July 1946, the army fought in the East Pomeranian Offensive. In 1947, it fought
