What is a Guide and Guide List? Most websites have rule pages which tells you that they will not have a guide section. However, some websites do have a guide section. This is quite common on gaming websites because people make the mistake of not thinking that there are actual paid guide sections. You would be surprised just how many websites do not have an actual paid guide section and instead have a very long list of guides for free. That is exactly what this guide section is and can be found on all of these websites: Most websites have the same background, same type of font and same colors. The only real differences that you should be aware of when comparing websites are: Why Website #1 is Better Website #2 is Better Their Style and Design Their Functionality Their Design Well, lets start with the style and design of each website. Website #1 is a bit more fancy. They have more different colors and fonts. What is the point of having these differences? Well, its good so the people who visit the website can see that they are in a bit more of a fancy tone. Its important so that people know that there is a guide on the website and that they should be paying attention. Website #2 is more standard. They have more of the same colors and fonts, but still have a little bit of a different style to them. This is good because they are more simple and easier to understand. Website #1 is Better Now lets get to what website is the better website. Well, you have to go with website #1 because that is the website with the paid guide section. Let me tell you why. Website #1 has a few things that you would want a paid section to have. They have more things on their pages and each page is easy to navigate, load and read. Website #2 does have a few things. However, the most important one is that there are ads on their site. They have quite a few adverts and they are real adverts. They are not the normal little cheap adverts which the website has, but they are videos of people doing their job. These videos look like real video ads which you will see on YouTube. They look really good and they are realistic, and they are easy to follow. 804945ef61
